- FIRST INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF AMERICAN STATES

The First International Conference of American States was held on October 2nd, 1890, in Washington, D.C., with the presence of all the governments of the hemisphere, with the exception of the Dominican Republic. The objective of this conference was:

to discuss and recommend their corresponding Governments the implementation of an arbitration plan for the settlement of disagreements and disputes that may hereafter arise between them; to consider issues related to the improvement of reciprocal business relationships and means of direct communication between said countries; to encourage such reciprocal commercial relations since it will be beneficial to all and secure more extensive markets for the products of each of said countries.¹

In this meeting, the establishment of an International Union of American Republics was agreed, which eventually became the Pan American Union, that passed judgment via the Pan American Conferences, held between 1889 and 1948. Finally, these gave way to the founding of the Organization of American States (OAS) in 1948.

Progressively, different institutions were incorporated aiming at facilitating cooperation on specific issues. The Pan American Institute of Geography and History (PAIGH) was created in 1928, during the VI Pan American Conference, for the advancement of the sciences that correspond to its field of action : Cartography, Geophysics, Geography and History. Through an agreement, it became the first specialized agency of the OAS in 1949.

The History Commission of the PAIGH, created in accordance with Resolution XXVII at the IV General Assembly of the PAIGH in 1946, aims for studying the historical processes, current realities and their impact on the future of the continent, through collective and regional research, the publication of books and specialized magazines, as well as the organization and participation in scientific meetings. Likewise, it finances projects with a Pan-American perspective on the history, culture, anthropology and archeology of the countries of the Americas. It also promotes policies that facilitate access to historical information and its dissemination; at the same time it sponsors communication and exchange between researchers of historical and social sciences in the Americas.
